The Banker's Remedy of Set-Off

Sheelagh McCracken, Professor of Finance Law at the University of Sydney Law School and a Fellow of the Australian Academy of Law, Australia.

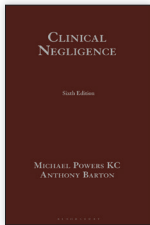

Divided into five Parts that discuss the relevance, concept, nature, scope and application of set-off, the book cuts through the confusing terminology which often obscures the role of set-off, carefully distinguishing set-off from combination and netting.

With case law and legislation fully updated, the 4th edition also includes:

- New coverage and analysis of the role and impact of set-off and netting in financial markets; and the operation of set-off and netting under personal property securities
- Draws on comparative material from Australia, Canada, New Zealand and on the work of various international agencies
- The conceptual basis for set-off

Clinical Negligence

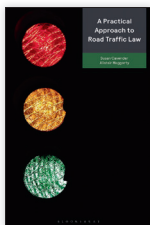

Dr Michael Powers KC, Clerksroom, UK & Anthony Barton, Solicitor, UK

The only text of its kind to cover both medical and legal aspects of medical negligence, this work provides guidance on all aspects of clinical negligence claims from bringing an action for damages to presenting expert evidence in court.

The sixth edition includes new chapters on Medical Regulation, Cardiology, Gynaecology, Haematology and VTE, and also includes coverage and analysis of recent key cases such as Williams v Bermuda Hospitals [2016], R (on the application of Maughan) v HM Senior Coroner for Oxfordshire [2020], Darnley v Croydon Health Authority [2018] and many more.

The first part deals with legal aspects of medical malpractice, including complaints procedures, poor performance and medical professional governance, preparation of medical evidence, settlements and trial. The second part covers the risks associated with particular areas of specialist medical practice.

A Practical Approach to Road Traffic Law

Susan Cavender & Alistair Haggerty

Draws together aspects which arise in day-to-day court practice, alongside information about, eg heavy goods vehicles and taxis.

Sets out how a case makes its way through the courts, the various offences, how to handle them at every stage (including sentencing) and notes the most important matters in each situation. It also includes sections about the minimum requirements for legality and the circumstances in which licences may be revoked.

Assists legal practitioners and people who choose to represent themselves (litigants in person) wishing to set out their case in the Magistrates' Courts when facing prosecution for a more minor offence.

Enforcement by Taking Control of Goods

The law of enforcement pursuant to Schedule 12 of the Tribunals, Courts and Enforcement Act 2007

Christopher Royle

A guide to the law of taking control of goods as a means of enforcement post 2014.

For both lawyers and enforcement professionals this new title analyses the present legislation and case law covering enforcement by taking control of goods, formerly known as distress or impounding, when a judgment debt goes unpaid. It also deals with the process of obtaining and executing writs and warrants of control from beginning to end, and covers the certification regime for enforcement agents, all by reference to the latest case law.

Human Rights in Criminal Law

Ben Douglas-Jones KC, 5 Paper Buildings, UK, Daniel Bunting, 2 Dr Johnson's Buildings, UK, Paul Mason & Benjamin Newton, both Doughty Street Chambers, UK

This book focusses on the impact of human rights law at every stage of the criminal process. It traces the principal human rights issues that arise from protections that apply during an investigation prior to a suspect even knowing that they are a suspect, to powers of arrest and search, and treatment at the police station. It then considers every stage of the criminal process up to any potential appeal before the domestic courts and the European Court of Human Rights.

It is divided into four parts. Part 1 covers the fundamental principles of the European Convention on Human Rights and the Human Rights Act 1998 and their application in domestic law, particularly in relation to criminal appeal. Parts 2 to 4 address the three broad phases of a criminal case investigation, pre-trial and trial providing an analysis of human rights law.

Advanced, Automated and Electric Vehicle Law

Alex Glassbrook, Temple Garden Chambers, UK

Covers the implications of the Automated and Electric Vehicles Act 2018 and the topography of the Advanced Driver Assistance Systems ('ADAS') and Automated Vehicles ('AV') legal landscape.

Considers the laws of ADAS and AV systems in three broad areas of law: civil law; criminal law; and public law.

Helps lawyers and judges approach the challenging task of presenting and adjudicating ADAS and AV cases. It is also of great interest to non-lawyers working in the field (industry and government) who need to know the principles of British AV law and to students studying law subjects with AV and AI components.

Transparency in the Family Courts

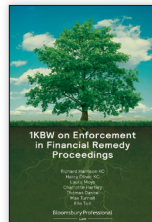

Publicity and Privacy in Practice

Julie Doughty, Cardiff University, UK, Paul Magrath, Incorporated Council of Law Reporting for England and Wales & Lucy Reed, St John's Chambers, Bristol, UK

Transparency is a troubling issue in family justice, with courts being accused of secrecy and unaccountability and concerns raised in relation to the risks posed to children of publicity cases in which they are involved. This text draws together the law and key cases to provide practical guidance on publicity in family law cases and their reporting in the media.

The second edition includes recent case law and procedural changes, including the implications of court hearings being conducted online, as introduced during the pandemic but set to continue. It is written in the context of the outcome of the President's Transparency Review (2021).

Personal Insolvency Law in Ireland

Alan McGee

Personal insolvency law can be a complex area for practitioners and this text will guide you through the Personal Insolvency process which was introduced in Ireland following the last economic crash by way of The Personal Insolvency Act 2012.

The Insolvency Service of Ireland was established in 2013 and began processing insolvency applications in the last quarter of 2013. The process was slow to take off as the banks held a de facto veto on the process and the Act was amended in 2015 to allow for an appeal process. A large body of High Court jurisprudence has now been developed.

Tax Litigation Handbook

Pump Court Tax Chambers

Tax Litigation Handbook, authored by Pump Court Tax Chambers is the successor to the previously published Hamilton on Tax Appeals.

It deals with tax appeals process, including the types of decision that can be appealed and how an appeal can be brought. It also addresses procedures for other types of tax litigation, such as judicial review to the Upper Tier Tribunal, claims for professional negligence, insolvency procedures and High Court litigation.

All commentary references relevant cases, and includes examples where relevant. The book will be of interest to practitioners representing clients in an appeal, or those considering appealing a decision.
